

Commuters here helped Bi-State numbers decline

ST. LOUIS — Bi-State's ridership is off 5.6 percent since the bus company raised fares last October. Agency executives, and Granite City officials may have contributed to the result.

The only bright spot was the ridership gains posted on the 10 express routes served by the most popular service, the round-trip coach buses, said Raymond E. Jurkowski, deputy executive director and general manager of administration and finance.

Officially, the Bi-State Development Agency had expected ridership to drop about 3.7 percent after bus fares were increased July 1.

"There was a slightly higher ridership than we anticipated," Jurkowski told the Bi-State's transit committee, which oversees bus operations.

Except for the Metroliner routes, passenger losses were scattered across the board, he said. The review of passenger and revenue data for the six months ended Dec. 31 found 5.6 percent fewer riders than a year earlier, but revenue was up 6 percent, less than the 11.3 percent that executives had predicted.

Ridership losses were greatest on express routes bringing commuters from Madison County, including Granite City, to downtown, Jurkowski said. "Preliminary analysis of these routes indicate a greater resistance to the 25 percent increase in fare from $1 to $1.25."

Express routes in St. Clair County carried 2.3 percent fewer passengers, and in Missouri express ridership was off 4.8 percent. Boardings on local routes were down 6.4 percent.

Jurkowski calculated that resistance to the higher fares accounted for 4.3 percent of the ridership loss, and that the remainder resulted from the summer's extreme heat as well as cutting service in Madison County.

Metroliner, while a bright spot, isn't doing so well that the fare should be increased to $1.50 from $1.25, executive director R. Raleigh Adiamo said. When the coach buses were introduced last fall, Bi-State commissioners authorized an introductory fare of $1.25, which they planned to be cut to $1.00 on Jan. 1.

The St. Louis County Public Transportation Commission last week urged Bi-State not to boost the Metroliner fare as had been done.

"The public strongly feels a fare increase of any amount will, in effect, kill this program," chairman Harold L. Dielman states in a letter to D. Adiamo.

D. Adiamo concurred, saying the Metroliner routes were showing only "steady but slow increases" in ridership. The five routes that had been operating the longest by the Metroliners, approximately four months, have notched a 9 percent ridership increase, Jurkowski said.

Ridership on the four routes that recently got Metroliner services is off nearly 15 percent, the result of the higher fare, he said. The fare on non-Metroliner express routes is $1.15.

The transit committee will recommend to the full Board of Commissioners that the Metroliner route remain $1.25 until September, when Bi-State will again consider the fare increase, committee chairman Meno Smith said.

In other recent action, the transit committee recommended:

Bi-State, as the low-cost bidder, handle the Redbird and Marion Opera express buses this summer.

In Bi-State's first "privatization" bidding, five private transit companies were invited to bid for the service. Two did so and the one rated Bi-State as the lowest-cost supplier, Jurkowski said.

Bi-State offers a shuttle bus service at the VP Fair over the summer. It is only selling $100 of the $150 tickets, so if the VP Fair Foundation raises $44,000 to cover the costs of the service, "we'll be happy," he said.

• BHN Advertising and Public Relations, awarded Bi-State's advertising contract. BHN has handled Bi-State marketing and advertising since September 1987.

Bi-State buys its own placement of ads in the media, which means the transit agency keeps the 17 percent commission that the advertising agency normally would earn for that service, Covington said.

$20 million called too costly for proposed county building

EDWARDSVILLE — A proposal to spend about $20 million to build a new Madison County administration building and renovate the courthouse may be too expensive, a County Board member said.

The present plan could result in higher taxes, said Fred Dalton, D-Crescentville.

The new administration building could be smaller, and the courthouse renovation could be postponed, Dalton said.

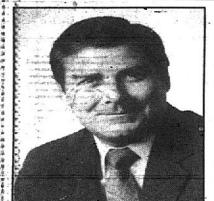

Other board members said the county can afford the project without higher property tax revenue from a quarter-cent sales tax imposed last year will pay for the project.

The county needs to centralize many county offices under one roof, they said, adding that maintenance and utility costs are increasing rapidly at older buildings now used for some county offices.

Correction on name

The name of Earl Marti was incorrectly given in a recent Press-Record/Journal article. Marti, a member of the Saturday Evening Social Club, held 800 kings in a single pinhole deck Feb. 11. Seniors 55 and older are welcome to join the club, which meets at 7 p.m. every Saturday at Anchorage Hall, 2009 Edwards St. We regret the error.

WINNER: Delores Dorch of Granite City won a dinner for two at Ralph and Charlie's Steak House in Madison, Ill., during a recent Valentine's gift promotion offered through the restaurant. Participants were asked to register at a variety of merchants featured on pages printed earlier in the Press-Record/Journal.

Lucky 2242 ... nevertheless not my will, but thine be done."

The fact that prayer can be very hard to say is well known in Gethsemane. He prayed until his sweat fell as it were, great drops of blood. If Jesus prayed so earnestly to God, then we must expect to do the same.

Notice the cause of such suffering. It is our will, but God's will. Surrender of our will to God is not a battle once fought and forever won. It is a daily battle we must daily pray to submit our will.

However, the results are worth the sacrifice. Jesus said, "For whomsoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and my mother." This puts us in a most wonderful place of God. What a secure place to be.

Notice again the cause of such suffering. It is our will, but God's will. Surrender of our will to God is not a battle once fought and forever won. It is a daily battle we must daily pray to submit our will.

HATCH AN EGG: Four-year-old Timothy Lemp holds a plastic Easter egg with Randy Taylor, a manager of the Granite City Ponderosa Restaurant. The restaurant is sponsoring a "Hatch an Egg" promotion to benefit the Easter Seal Society of Southwestern Illinois, where Timothy is a client. Patrons of the restaurant may purchase one or more eggs for $1 each. The eggs contain a $1.00 Easter Seal coupon. All proceeds go to the Easter Seal Society. Timothy is the son of James and Beverly Lemp of Granite City.

Cholesterol screenings to be offered once more

Due to the large community response to the cholesterol screenings with professional consultations held during the first half of February, St. Elizabeth Medical Center in Granite City will soon be offering several additional screenings.

"Of the people we saw at our February screening, 57 percent needed to reduce their cholesterol levels. Since cholesterol is one of the three leading factors in developing heart disease, we need to make people more and more aware of the changes they can make in order to be healthier and live longer," said Rev. Bill Miller, executive specialist with SEMC's Outpatient Cardiac Rehab Program.

During March, which is National Nutrition Month, the Rehab Program and Food Service Department will sponsor three cholesterol screenings with professional consultation at area Schnucks Supermarkets.

Participants will be seen on a first-come, first-serve basis.

No pre-registration is required. The charge will be $5.

The screenings will take place on the following Tuesdays:

• March 7 at the Granite City Schnucks, 3401 Nameoki Road.

• March 14 at the Cahokia Schnucks, 1615 Camp Jackson Road.

Also, cholesterol screenings with professional consultation will be offered at the SEMC Wellness Center, 2103 Iowa St. in Granite City, from 6 to 8 p.m. on the following Wednesday days:

• March 22.

• April 19.

• May 17.

The charge for this test will be $5. Pre-registration is required. To pre-register for the Wellness Center screenings on Friday, 798-3935 may be called.

Credit Union will hold annual meeting Sunday

The Granite City Steel Employees Federal Credit Union will hold its annual meeting on Sunday, March 5, from noon until 5 p.m. at the Granite City Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave.

An election of directors will be held. Refreshments will be served and prizes will be given.

THE STORM FRESHEST IN the minds of Granite Cityans is the one that destroyed a large part of Crossroads Plaza Shopping Center in March

Windy City?

QUAD CITY AREA — "We were sitting in George Getz's house at Hampden and Broadway. It got dark outside, and we looked out ourselves to look out, there was a great roar that ripped at the house and we ran for our lives."

George Richards of Venice gave that description to the Press-Record in the aftermath of the tornado of Sept. 29, 1927, the worst tornado in living memory to hit the Quad City area.

The '27 twister killed eight people here and about 100 in St. Louis. In more recent memory, tornados on April 3, 1981, and May 1, 1983, caused extensive damage but killed no one.

The '27 twister leaped the Mississippi River shortly after noon on April 3, 1981, and Venice at the foot of the McKinley Bridge, tearing a great hole in the power house there and plunging the Tri-City area into darkness.

Among those killed was Venice Police Chief "Uncle Mike" Clifford, 65, who died en route to St. Elizabeth Hospital after rescue workers dug him from the rubble of his house. The next day Clifford's Irish setter, Rowdy, refused to budge from the spot where he had last seen Clifford.

A Madison man died of heart failure. The funnel touched down again at the St. Louis Coke and Iron Corporation plant (now the Blast Furnace Division of Granite City Steel), where it struck the dining room and overturned a cauldron of molten iron on seven men. One lived.

Property damage in the area totaled $5 million.

Venice was the worst hit, and in the days and weeks that followed, residents of East St. Louis, Madison and Granite City gave generously to relief efforts. By Oct. 11, $12,000 had been raised to help Venice rebuild.

Prohibition was still in effect at the time, and accounts of stills and speakeasies being busted are scattered in the Press-Record. Included in the Sept. 30 coverage was a brief item relating how a Venice "beverage parlor proprietor ... dug deeply into his private stocks and set forth some bonafide tonic for rescue workers and the injured."

The Press-Record was able to work through the night covering the disaster when the Coke Plant diverted electricity from its own power plant to Granite City after the Venice power plant was knocked out.

A Press-Record scribe wrote:

"As a cloudy twilight swiftly yielded to darkness, starlight was the only illumination in Venice and Madison throughout the night. Indoors, candles gave a ghostly, flickering light."

Communications and streetcar traffic in St. Louis were knocked out the next day. Hundreds who worked in St. Louis trudged home in darkness across the McKinley Bridge, not knowing if their families had been spared.

A tornado is truly one of the most frightening of nature's forces. It comes quickly, with a rushing sound like a giant train. Its utter unpredictability is a large part of the awe and fear it inspires. One man's house may be utterly destroyed, and yet his neighbor's may remain unscathed.

After the 1981 tornado that hit Granite City and Portion Beach damaged 102 homes, destroying 13, one woman told the Press-Record that she wasn't frightened until she looked outside and saw her neighbor's mobile home "suspended in the air."

THE POLICE CHIEF of Venice, Mike Clifford, died when a tornado struck his home on Sept. 27, 1927. Seven others in the area perished in the storm. This photo and the one below were taken by the late Marvin McKinney, a lifetime resident of Venice.

Twister tips offered

Gov. James R. Thompson has declared March 5-11 as Tornado Preparedness Week in Illinois, and residents are urged to learn a few tornado preparedness measures.

"Since Illinois is located at the northeastern edge of the most tornado-prone region in the world, advance planning is crucial to save lives," Thompson said.

In 1988, there were 20 tornados in the state. The highest yearly total since 1950 was 107 in 1974; the lowest was four in 1952 and 1953. Since 1950, an average of 25 tornados reached down annually. Madison County has been hit by 27 since 1950.

As part of Tornado Preparedness Week, the Illinois Emergency Services and Disaster Agency, the Illinois State Police and the National Weather Service will conduct a tornado drill at 9:50 a.m. Tuesday, March 7. The drill will test state and local government emergency warning systems and communication systems and recovery capabilities.

The Civil Defense warning sirens will signal the beginning of the drill. Under normal circumstances, the sirens sound when a tornado has been spotted, called "tornado warning."

IESDA offers these safety tips during tornado warnings:

• Stay away from windows, doors and outside walls. Protect your head. If caught in room with a window, face away from the window to protect yourself from flying glass or debris.

• In small buildings, go to the basement or lowest level and stay in the smallest room you can find, a closet, a bathroom or an interior hall. Get under something sturdy.

• In high-rise buildings, go to interior small rooms or hallways.

• Do not stay in a vehicle or a mobile home. Go to the nearest substantial structure or lie flat in the nearest ditch with your hands shielding your head.

• Listen to radio or television for information from the National Weather Service. A "tornado watch" means tornados or severe thunderstorms are possible.

Invasion afoot: Coast types may corrupt life here

Friends, neighbors, fellow Midwesterners, a great peril is ahead! The Midwest has been to these many years as a place for hicks only, a place for any hip or sensitive soul to depart as soon as possible for more cultured climate on either coast, now being touted as an "In" place to live.

"The Heartland is Hot," proclaimed a recent article in NewswEEK, almost everyone in New York is looking longingly at midwest, longing to return to the rustic sound of places like Flat River, Mo., and Mulberry Grove,

Moreover, professional trend-setters in the upper west quoted in the NewswEEK article saying, "Trends are now emanating from the Midwest."

It started a few years back when stories of Midwestern life started becoming hot news items on the coasts. I remember reading last year that Midwestern cuisine was becoming popular elsewhere, such as meat loaf and fried chicken.

How long before corn dogs and meatballi replace nouvelle cuisine in fashionable "Frise restaurants?"

It doesn't stop with food, either. Bowling, long a popular Midwest leisure activity, has reached new heights of popularity nationwide. Bill bowlin-shine stars popping up in fashionable night spots in Manhattan?

Will polyester leisure suits become the rage in L.A.? (Los Angeles not covered.)

Understand, I am not opposed to depraved souls elsewhere discovering the charms of the Midwestern lifestyle. In fact, I think it is high time good folks of the fiber of the whole nation if San Franciscans went to a church fish fry now, and again, if street-crossed Yorkers discovered the pleasures of drowning crickets for bluegills.

But I have to draw the line at the idea of those folks moving here. The potential consequences are horrific to contemplate.

For one thing, increased demand would be sure to drive up the price of certain accessories of Midwestern life. Bib overalls, for instance, and Dekalb caps.

These latter-day immigrants would also be sure to bring some corrupting influences with them. Can you imagine Perrier being sold in Granite City taverns or El Gato? Sushi at Ralph and Charlie's?

There are already too many bicyclists in these parts who have eschewed bermedas and cut-offs in favor of revealing, neon-hued synthetic leathers. Disgusting!

Do you want to see race-walking replace bowling as the exercise of choice? Have you seen the way those people move? They look like my Uncle Elmer looking for the joint at Sportsman's Park. The time at took that laxative in the morning and it hit him during the seven-inch stretch.

Would they bring horrible eating habits with them to pervert innocent minds?

Friends, I ask you! Do you want your children eating something other than todd instead of ice cream? I think not. Folks in these parts stand foursquare behind Ted Drewes.

Do you want your children hanging out at shopping malls, California-style, in padded halls? Do you want them taking things like Valley Girls? Like wow, for sure not.

This is also this to consider.

A very wealthy and successful businessman acquaintance of mine once told me that the Midwest was a better place than the coasts to do business because you could still trust the word when cutting a deal. You didn't need battalions of lawyers to do every i and cross every t.

And a pack of New Yorkers and Californians would be sure to bring their litigious instincts with them.

That means more lawyers would locate here, think most of us would agree, what could only alter our quality of life. Personally, I'd rather have cut worms and locusts.

In southern California, they're talking about digging a big ditch to keep out illegal immigrants from Mexico.

Don't know what it would take to keep these new immigrants out of the Midwest. The Great Walls of Chicago and Cheyenne (Wyo.), maybe?

Greshouse said. The check presentation is planned soon, he added.

Although the size of the vote margin was uncertain as the election was approached, he sensed in the last two weeks that we were getting our message across," Greshouse said. He and others spoke to dozens of constituents in January and February.

Joseph Hassler, Tri-Cities Area Chamber of Commerce president, responded and said the issue was one of the most crucial ever faced in this region.

"At our Economic Development Committee meeting (Wednesday) evening, the discussion made it clear that we are now in a position to seek a variety of development," Hassler said yesterday.

R. Bush, chamber executive vice president, said, "We plan to keep in close touch with the Corps and the Sanitary District as the different phases of the work are carried out. We'll help keep everyone informed of the progress."

"All financial avenues are open and we are free to seek new business and investors, thanks to the success of the election. This is the best thing that could have happened to the Sanitary District and its communities."

Bowler

ney, Clyde Kuehn, mutually agreed to seek the declaratory judgment.

Butch Peterson, assistant school attorney, attempted to present the judge with several case-law definitions of conviction that were opposite to the judge's decision.

"Conviction occurs at the time of judgment," Peterson said. "It does not drag out until sentencing."

Isbell discounted some of the cases, saying that federal law was being construed with the Illinois ouster statute.

The largest part of the argument concerned the judge's determination of "infamous crime" which he did not do, basing his decision only on the conviction aspect of the district's complaint.

Peterson related a case in which a public official was convicted of filing a false income tax return, an offense which was considered an infamous crime.

"The substance of that crime is essentially what they did," Peterson said.

Isbell said he would not give an advisory opinion on the definition of infamous crime because he felt it was inappropriate for the court to do so.

"My opinion would have no impact on Mr. Bowler does or does not do in regard to school board business," Isbell said.

Following the argument, Peterson said he was awaiting an opinion which would have no impact on Mr. Bowler does or does not do in regard to school board business," Isbell said.

"Following the argument, Peterson said he was awaiting an opinion which would have no impact on Mr. Bowler does or does not do in regard to school board business," Isbell said.

Peterson said he was awaiting direction from the board, although he said he expects both issues ("conviction" and "infamous") to ultimately be appealed. "It's up to them now," Peterson said.

The board has 30 days to file a motion of reconsideration.

"(Further action) will probably be decided at sentencing," Peterson said. "I doubt we could accomplish an appeal between now and then, anyway."

"(Further action) will probably be decided at sentencing," Peterson said. "I doubt we could accomplish an appeal between now and then, anyway."

The city clerk's office has 30 days to file a motion of reconsideration.

"(Further action) will probably be decided at sentencing," Peterson said. "I doubt we could accomplish an appeal between now and then, anyway."

An attorney who is not an attorney of record in the case and who asked not to be identified, said there is "no such animal" as a partially closed public meeting. He said the board should at the outset have asked the Illinois Attorney General's Office for an advisory opinion on whether it was proper to hold such a meeting.

Ambuehl said Wednesday the board then advised him to do it and that no advisory opinion was sought. Hildebrand could not be reached for comment.

Also allowed to remain was the chief of police, Jim Lengyel. Gomric objected to this, saying Lengyel had been subpoenaed to testify.

"I don't intend to call him," replied Assistant City Attorney Ed Fidhenry, representing the police.

"Well, he's listed as a witness and I may call him," replied Gomric.

"If we follow that logic, Sgt. Bowler should be asked to leave," Fidhenry reported.

After consulting with Hildebrand, Ambuehl ruled that Lengyel could stay.

Gomric objected to the record, saying that the chief's presence violates the board's own rule on the exclusion of witnesses.

Witnesses testifying Monday were Patrolmen Mike Hill and Ned Tapp, Sgts. John Apperson and Dan Rosenburg, Assistant Chief Ron Selph and former chief Astorian.

At issue was whether Reader lied to his superiors to believe that his October absences from work were the result of an injury suffered on duty. Reader said he was treated for an ailment not work-related.

For work-related treatment, absences are not deducted from sick leave, Reader said. The department alleged Reader lied to deceive it about the reason for the absences.

Also at issue is whether he was disrespectful toward Astorian.

Astorian said Reader in a phone conversation accused him of "messing with me."

Astorian said under cross-examination that Reader told him the absences weren't because of an injury suffered on duty, "but he wouldn't say what it was."

Tired of drugs, crime

To the editor:

We are tired. When I speak and say we know that I'm being robbed by drug addicts and having older people afraid to leave their homes in the Madison and Venice area. The police can't seem to catch the criminals.

I feel it is past time for something to be done about enforcement of the laws to stop drugs, break-ins and crime.

REV. R.L. KELLER

Venice

... and criminal 'field day'

To the editor:

I am tired of it, and the decent and innocent citizens are, too, with the burglaries that are having a field day breaking into in our homes.

This doesn't make sense. Every other day seems like the good citizens of Venice are being robbed in the open daylight. Thugs and hoodlums are trying to take over our city, and very few are caught or arrested.

Senior citizens are scared to death. People are afraid to come to church, go to work, or even leave their homes for a few hours because thugs might clean them out. Something must be done.

The police need help. We citizens must get involved. That's the only way: We need to start our own crime watch on every street. The crooks care less whose house they break into. The terrorists must be stopped.

Sooner or later they are going to kill some innocent person, or they (the burglars) are going to be killed. Let's stop it before it happens. The police need help, the city fathers should call for assistance of the State Police.

Keep church out of politics

To the editor:

Well, it is that time of year for all of us good citizens to go to the polls and vote.

I am Hazel "Connie" York, a widow and grandmother. I have voted in every election since I was 18 years old. I was born in 1933, that tells you how old I am. I have a husband and his five children. I have two children deceased. One son died I called a man of God to give me comfort. So when I attended a council meeting in my town to elect a new mayor I was "shocked, astonished" and at a loss for words to see four men of God in the council room.

I take my fate to God, and here these four men of God are judging me and all others on what they hear in a heated political argument between two political opponents. I believe in God, a much more "superior being" than any of us mere people. But I believe the churches should not be involved in political heated

My 7-year-old son died of cancer. It was a "terrible, terrible" time in my life. My daughter died seven years ago of an over dose. Both were a needless death, so when God said, "Judge lest you be judged," I believe we should live by that rule and keep the churches out of politics.

My support is for Ron Grzywacz for mayor.

Effective college instruction offered here

To the editor:

District residents, you have a friend at Belleville Area College.

Indeed, because of the diversity of our educational and related services you probably have heard of the many students, neighbors, co-workers and relatives involved in one of our community college programs. We hope you're involved with the college, too.

We joined in February with others across this nation in observing Community College Month. I'd like to share with you some facts about your own Belleville Area College.

Do you realize:

- When our graduates transfer to senior institutions, they earn higher grade point averages than students who spent their four years at those universities.

- Graduates of our health care program experience almost immediate employment.

- Twenty-four graduates of our aviation maintenance program were hired recently out of their Granite City campus classroom by McDonald Industries.

- Our instructors and students have amassed one of the finest art collections for a community college in the nation.

- Area business and education communities look to Belleville Area College as a primary source for computer training.

- More than 12,000 seniors par-icipate in a variety of activities offered through the college's Programs and Services for Older Persons.

These are only a few of the many things happening on at your community college.

We are pleased to be a vital part of this region. Your involvement in our college is critical, for we exist only to serve you.

Living with the victim of memory loss can be devastating. You sit by, helpless, as your loved one struggles to perform the most routine tasks, fails to recognize old friends and family members, and confuses words when trying to express simple thoughts.

We understand your pain and fear. And we can help. If you know a victim of severe memory loss, talk to the experts in The Memory Disorder Program at DePaul. Our specialists can make a thorough, accurate diagnosis of the problem. That's important, because what is often thought to be Alzheimer's Disease can actually be memory loss caused by brain strokes, a thyroid disorder, nutritional deficiency, depression or an adverse drug reaction. Once we've identified the problem, we can provide progressive, encouraging treatment. DePaul also offers counseling, education and support for patients and their families. Most of all, we offer hope.

The first step is up to you. Contact DePaul to schedule a free evaluation. Call us today. We can be the open door to a mind that's closing.

Call 344-7130 for a free memory disorder evaluation.

A strong call for progress

The overwhelming, 10,700 to 3,787 victory in Tuesday's Metro East Sanitary District election reflects the good judgment of MESD voters.

Significant improvements can now be made to the deteriorated flood control system that protects this floodplain area.

Approval of a tax increase is difficult to achieve in an era when many home owners are concerned about their economic well-being and about governmental budgeting tendency to spend beyond their revenue. The MESD has been living within its limited income but was burdened by people's memories of past decades' spending abuses.

Despite such handicaps, voters came to realize that the safety of their families and the value of their property must be guarded no matter what the cost. In this case, the cost will be relatively light, since there will be a major infusion of federal money over the next five years.

Once levees, pumping stations and floodgates have been improved, and once the network of canals and drainage ditches has been unclogged—all of this done under the direction of the Army Corps of Engineers—there will be sufficient annual funding to maintain the rehabilitated facilities in proper fashion. The maintenance program will be carried out by the MESD in close coordination with state waterway authorities.

In addition, a series of deep wells and pumps will be installed to lower the groundwater table and curb financial losses stemming from flooded basements and broken sewer lines.

Authorization of added real-estate taxes was the key to unlocking a $31 million public works project. The work can permanently assure that this will be a safe region despite the threat posed by the mighty Mississippi River and by surface ponding and underground water.

Not only will the physical hazards be dealt with, but an accompanying economic penalty will be avoided. Construction, expansion and the other ordinary aspects of daily life can continue. Financial avenues will not be closed. Job opportunities can be increased, along with the general quality of life. And the normal rewards for hard-working families and communities can be pursued.

Our citizens and other MESD residents did themselves and their fellow citizens proud in the Feb. 28 election. They voted for a sound program, for progress and for a prosperous future. We salute one and all for their participation.

Another industry reopens

Granite City Steel's resurgence, A.O. Smith's Granite City rebirth, and now the assured reopening of the American Steel Foundry—a healthy, happy pattern is making its impact felt in this community, with indirect benefits as well for the surrounding region.

The latest good tidings were announced by American Steel, closed here since 1982 but active in recent months in bringing its huge plant back to life. Production will be resumed May 15.

Those who wrote off the Midwestern "rust belt" were wrong, and news such as this provides the proof. Our nation is not destined to be merely a "service" country, leaving technology and durable goods manufacturing to other parts of the world. America can and must stand tall, and the Quad City area is ready, able and eager to play a prominent role.

The thought of many go back to the constructive leadership of Al Steinhauser, Mitch Milonski and Bill Donovan, works managers.

Thoughts now will focus on a bright future with Donovan and the hundreds of skilled craftsmen who have helped make Granite City ASF known around the world for the quality of its side frames and bolsters, utilized in railroad freight wheel assemblies.

The entire community is voicing a hearty "Welcome back!" to American Steel and Amsted Industries.

CPR training again pays off

Something as simple as CPR training continually pays off. Just ask Wilbert Engelke.

Two Granite City Police officers are credited with helping save Engelke's life after he collapsed at a recent hearing at City Hall. Police Capt. Glenn Wright and Detective Curt Walkenbach responded quickly to a life-threatening situation.

Engelke was attending a meeting of the Granite City Planning Commission when he suffered an apparent heart attack.

The two officers saw him slump over. One grabbed for his walkie-talkie and called for an ambulance while the other began to administer cardiopulmonary resuscitation. Two times, Engelke's pulse stopped and started again, Wright said.

All of us wonder if the need to administer CPR will ever arise in our presence, but only a few of us have had the training. Fewer still would be able to act in such an expeditious manner to save a life.

Police force recruits learn CPR as a part of their academy training, but learning it and using it, we know, are two different things.

This city can be proud of these public servants. Glenn Wright and Curt Walkenbach are two more reasons why "Granite City's finest" continually live up to that label.

Readers react

Should the U.S. have reacted to Iranian threats?

Should the U.S. have reacted more strongly to threats by the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of Iran, toward the U.S. publishers of a British novelist's book—threats taken seriously enough to force two major bookstore chains to remove the book from their shelves for fear of their employees' safety?

Tana Opich,
Granite City

"I think, far as the bookstores' rights under the First Amendment are concerned, the government should intervene. But until something really happens (the government) should not make any comment about it."

Ed Peck,
Granite City

"I think the book off the shelves has satisfied their threats against the publishers. I don't think the government should step in. That would be interfering with free enterprise. It's only threats, so far."

Ray Franklin,
Granite City

"No I don't. I think the U.S. gets involved in too many things that don't involve the government directly. If something would happen, maybe the government should get involved."

Writes a tribute to Grandpa

To the editor:

When we learned that Grandpa had cancer, we asked God to let him die of cancer and not to be in pain. God so mercifully answered our prayer.

He died of kidney failure, and from the time we prayed that prayer over him, he never again complained of pain at the site of the cancer. He never went into a coma; the doctors said would come but was fully conscious until his death.

In the last couple of hours before his death, he became perfectly calm and peaceful. No tumor you could see in his chest disappeared. God was completing the healing before we placed him to heaven.

I sat at Grandpa's bedside as the man of his death came to take him. I held him close, seeing Jesus and assured him that we were near and would not let him be alone until we placed him in Jesus' hand.

We held him close, seeing his parents and brothers and sisters gathered around him. He had not told them not to be afraid, to not look back and not to linger just for us to we would someday meet him there.

I could never say these words if Grandma and Grandpa had not taught me about Jesus. If they had not taught me to not fear death.

Grandpa and Grandma were my spiritual parents.

They were the ones that taught me to sing the old hymns, to pray for healings and receive them. They were the ones that took me to brush-arbor meetings, to water baptisms in the river, and all-day singings with dinner on the ground.

They were the first ones to teach me about Jesus and his saving power, to read the Word and apply it to my life, and it still works to this day.

He was my first grandchild. He wanted a grandson, so he called Pa's Boy. In my younger years, Grandpa taught me to drive a tractor, gather eggs, wing a chicken's neck and skin a rabbit.

He had much patience for little girls following everywhere in his footsteps. He taught me to look people straight in the eye when talking to them; he taught me the importance of honesty and how to manage money wisely. For all these things I thank him.

But most of all, I thank him for teaching me to love and serve my precious son and I had the honor of telling him so just before he left us to go to be with Jesus.

I was honored he called me Pa's Boy and I knew he was proud of me. I was proud to call him Grandpa.

When he died, he had left me a little hand over mine and said: "Grandma, this world is not our home; heaven is our real home and someday we'll see Grandpa again."

Grzywacz knows the territory

To the editor:

I am hearing all kinds of stupid things about "Ron Grzywacz will do this" or "He will do that" if he is elected mayor of Madison.

Let me tell you something about Ron. Madison needs someone like Ron to run the city because I, for one, know that Mayor John Belcoff has not spent one full day in his office since he was elected in 1985.

You can tell the city run itself as he has done the past four years. Those of us that were around the City Hall in 1985 know that Ron ran the city for the first two years. We watched the mayor go into the hospital for two different operations and we all went to Ron as department heads and asked him what to do.

If he couldn't tell us, he would talk it over with the mayor at the hospital. Ron would go to every other morning to tell Mr. Belcoff in what was happening with city affairs.

At this same time Ron was repainting all the Street Department's equipment and took a look clean and last the next four years, so we didn't have to buy new equipment.

I stood by many days at City Hall and listened to everybody call for Ron and ask him what they should do with problems that would come up from time to time.

Then Ron Grzywacz ran for alderman in Ward Two in 1987. I sat at the Madison City Organization meeting and listened. Mayor Belcoff told people what a great job Ron did helping him in his mayor's election and the fine job he had done with the Street Department.

Mr. Belcoff said he was endorsing Ron for alderman and then the Madison City Organization made a motion to also endorse him at that time. Now, just four years later, this same man and a few chosen friends of his are spreading rumors all over town about Ron.

I can tell you one thing: If Ron Grzywacz is elected mayor, it will be the best thing that could happen to Madison because Ron has invested in Madison. He has bought a beautiful home in Madison and bought a big business in Madison. What he did for this community is something that cannot be beat.

I was an appointed officer in Madison until I openly backed Grzywacz for mayor. I think he is the best candidate for mayor.

Until this day, John Belcoff has not told me, or anyone else, why I was removed from my position as Civil Defense director of Madison.

Sears gets deserved publicity

Sears, the store "Where America Shops," is coming home with points with consumers this week, and company officials want the world to know it.

I had a moment giving 'em a plug. I think they deserve it.

Sears closed every store in its chain between late Monday and Wednesday noon this week to mark its 100th anniversary with more than 50,000 items in storewide sales, in addition it is adding a number of famous-brand items to supplement the likes of Kenmore, Craftsman, the well-known house names.

If you haven't picked up on the campaign through the electronic media, Sears' commercial assault, you probably did before the day's end. More than 700 ads are being aired during the next two weeks nationwide.

It's been a long time for corporate America to realize that shoppers are tired of paying more than a product is worth, but maybe that time has arrived for the big retailers. I feel Sears' move will begin a welcome trend.

Sales are great, but customers are becoming increasingly choosy. Many will buy a product only when it's on sale. Others will buy only advertised goods, and even then very selectively. Where once they would have been lured to buy at late offerings in the other aisles, steep prices have begun to sway consumers into getting just the one item they came for ... and not the rest.

I'm not a business expert, but I am a consumer. And there are only so many ways a dollar can be ripped apart before it disappears. When I go to Sears, I expect to see that Sears is trying to live up to the success being enjoyed by the discount retailers, K-mart and Wal-Mart, both of which have boomed by playing to their audience. Cheap sells. Steep doesn't.

Sam Walton didn't become one of the richest men in the land by going after the middle class. He struck a chord with middle America and stuck to it.

Sears is wisely changing its ways and is likely to step into the 21st Century in much better shape for it.

ed Way of America's Second Century Initiative, our organization has added the new position of campaign director," said Ben Johampeter, president of the local United Way.

"The position is a commitment to our community to increase the number of United Way volunteers and to raise additional funds to meet the growing needs of the area.

"We are proud of the growth and success we have experienced in the past, but we want to do more. The new campaign director will give our organization an opportunity to develop financial resources currently untapped," Johampeter said.

Ronald Jedda joins Central Bank's commercial division

Ronald L. Jedda has joined Central Bank of Granite City as senior vice president and head of the Commercial Banking Division. It was announced by Bart J. Soton, president and chief executive officer.

Prior to joining Central Bank, Jedda was with United Illinois Bank of Collinsville.

Jedda is originally from Collinsville and still resides there with his wife, Rose Marie, and two children. Jedda graduated from Southern Illinois University at Edwardsville with a bachelor of science degree in business and a master of business administration degree.

He is also a graduate of the Graduate School of Banking at the University of Wisconsin. He is active in the Civil Service Commission of the City of Collinsville.

Central Bank is a member of Central Bank System Inc., a $20 million bank holding company with banks in Granite City, Glen Carbon, Marine, Fairview Heights, Farmers and Merchants Bank in Carlinville.

Firm with Granite City clients gets Belleville branch office

"Horner & Shifrin Inc., design engineers/architects, hosted Illinois government officials, industrial clients and business associates at their new Illinois branch office in Belleville in mid-February."

Opened to serve its expanding operations for Illinois clients, the firm's new quarters are at 6400 West Main St., Suite 3J, Belleville. The telephone number is 397-1065.

"The firm has been working in Illinois since its founding 58 years ago in 1935," said Thomas G. Thompson, P.E., office manager for the branch and a Belleville resident.

"Horner & Shifrin has designed major portions of the flood protection system for Madison and St. Clair counties, and has also designed many municipal, industrial, corporate and airport projects in Illinois," — Thomas Thompson verify and adjust previous cost estimates to a new total of $37 million — of which a major portion will be available from the federal government to restore the system to full operation.

For the Illinois Department of Transportation, the firm is performing a two-phase program of highway engineering planning and design a replacement bridge span and improved approach roads for Illinois Highway 127/140 at Greenville and water system improvements for two interstate highway rest areas at New Baden and Highland.

Other Illinois clients recently served include Illinois American Water Co., City of Granite City, Harris Corp., Quincy Arch Mineral Corp., Canteen Township, Rock Island District Corps of Engineers, George Galvin Construction Co., Portland Cement Company-Joppatowne and the Village of Saugatuck.

The firm surveyed over 81 structures and numerous drainage channels and canals to assess existing conditions and to 50 persons in the bi-state area and offers civil, transportation, structural, sanitary and environmental engineering services, site development planning and construction supervision and architecture. Its home office is at 5200 Oakland Ave., St. Louis. Six employees of the firm are Metro East residents.

"Belleville was selected as the site for the new branch office because, in addition to its expanding business climate, St. Clair County has been a location for 214 projects for Horner & Shifrin over the years," Thompson added.

"This represents a majority of the 400 projects Horner & Shifrin has completed in Illinois. We received excellent support and assistance from Belleville Economic Progress, Inc., which funds our office, and local regional companies, especially the Alexander Management Co."

Be sure to count 'extras' when figuring home sale

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We are planning to sell our second home at the lake and were wondering about figuring out what we owe to the Internal Revenue Service for taxes.

After we subtract what we paid for the place from what we receive, can we also deduct all the extra expenses spent on it when we bought it? It was just a lot of water, no septic tank, trees, so on. We have also put in new furniture, floor covering, appliances, dishes, pans, silverware, linens, ceiling fans, and more. Is this all deductible since it will be sold to the buyer?

We also have eight soft maple trees, three hard maple, two flowering crab apples and shrubs, which are all mature now. How do we figure the value of them, and can we also deduct for restocking our yard and a driveway, sidewalk and path? We are retired and will be 67 and 68 years old by the time we sell.

K.F.

Answer: Boy, when you add up all your expenses, it's a lot of water, no septic tank, trees, etc. This was "just a lot, no water, no septic tank, no trees, etc." I assume that you are also saying "no house," either.

A fact is that Internal Revenue Service is concerned a second home is treated exactly like your principal residence when you sell it and tote up the tax liability. However, we don't use the word "deductibles" when we do this. Capital improvements, such as a building or other expenses incurred in the course of acquiring the property, ultimately, in the sale of it are added back to the "base cost" of the property, which has the practical impact of greatly reducing, if not eliminating, your tax liability.

In your case, the first expense to be added back to the base cost is the cost of building the home in its entirety, all the raw materials, the contractor's fee, and so on. The only thing you can deduct is the cost of your labor, or your off-chance that you built it yourself. You can add back miscellaneous expenses such as the loan origination fee in getting the money for the purchase of the lot (if applicable), as well as any hazard insurance, title insurance, escrow fees, and recording and transfer fees.

And, sure, you can add back the cost of the plumbing and septic tank, the trees, the driveway, the patios, the whole ball of wax. And, in your case, if you had everything else, the deal, you can also add back the cost of the appliances, furniture and so forth which, normally, a seller would take with him and would not add to the base cost. You will, however, have to differentiate your sales price due, at the time, to differentiate how much is allocated to the house itself, and how much represents the cost of these furnishings.

Also, at sale time, a lot of the expenses of selling a house may be deducted by the real estate broker's commission will be added back to the price you receive to reduce the tax even further.

Now, there's just one fly in this otherwise pleasant ointment: I hope you've kept good records because the IRS is going to demand that you produce them to substantiate adding them back to the base cost. Fair enough?

Dear Mr. Campbell:

In the spring of 1987 I purchased a home to be used as my primary residence. During the qualification process, I was living with a gal who later made the move with me to the new home. I was approved for the Federal Housing Administration loan and closed using my name only. As things turned out (very well, I might add), we were married about a year later. What should be done about this? Should I come to the loan or deed of trust in order to protect her interests and our family?

H.G.M.

Answer: Congratulations, and, not wanting to rock the boat for you, I won't even tell her that you referred to her as "a gal."

There's no problem here. Just go to your lender and have your wife's name added to the mortgage as joint tenant ("with survivorship"), and then go to your title office and have the same name addition made there. Some lenders are helpful enough to take care of this detail for you.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

Is there a form you can have signed by the FHA if you sell your house and somebody picks up your mortgage?

Answer: You bet there is, and don't let anyone assure you that FHA loan without first getting this release from liability from the FHA. Otherwise, if your buyer defaults, you're on the spot for any loss the FHA incurs.

Don't worry about it.

In violation of my training, common sense, experience, advice from friends and elementary real estate principles, I built a $100,000 house in an area where the average house sells for $30,000 and the top-of-the-line is $75,000.

Time to look over portfolio

By Bob Hardcastle
Staff affiliate

It's still early in 1989, a good time to wrap up everything concerning your investment portfolios for 1988 and see what we fare in our investments.

At the beginning of 1988, economists were saying there was definitely going to be an economic slowdown and that many businesses were going to cut back in half. We were being advised to lock up our money in banks and not make any investments at all.

Well, in some degree the economists were right. The stock market really didn't do much this year. It traded between 1950 and 2183 on the Dow Jones Industrial Average. Interest rates were up, but not as high. Our money was locked up in the bank we probably did get a little bit higher return than we would have last year. Bond prices slumped during most of the year because of rising interest rates so these investors who had their money into mutual funds and bond programs saw a decrease in their principal.

The state of mind in the investment world seemed to be one of total confusion and lack of confidence in all investments. Investors who did venture into the markets at one time or another were jumping back out when there was any sign of problems ahead, and there were problems ahead all year long.

It was the first year that the Dow did not end in many, many years that there was a total lack of confidence in government reporting. A national report would come out and the investment market would just look around and say "uh-hum," and wait until the next report. The economy has moved steadily ahead but the investor is still shaken. It is amazing what Oct. 19, 1987 and the 500-point drop in the Dow did to the investment community. It really scared the investor.

Whatever your investment portfolio looks like today, make sure you meet with a financial advisor, your CPA and your attorney before year's end to see exactly where your portfolio stands. There may be something you can do to do help your investment portfolio for a tax or legal standpoint through some type of maneuvering before Dec. 31.

Whatever you accomplished in 1988 in your investment package, be happy.

Many people just sat on the sidelines and saw the inflation rate eat up their hard-earned dollars.

About real estate

By Don Campbell

Now, two years later, I need to sell out. I've sent my brochure to all logical buyers and have listed the house on an "open" basis with three leading brokers. As one of them said, "There are eight people who can afford this house, and they know it's on the market."

I've allowed myself a year to sell the house, but what happens if it doesn't move? Leave it empty? Rent it, and then take the ensuing loss off my taxes? Should I take a loss and go on with my life? How do I know whether to drop it to $30,000, $35,000, whatever, or drop it to $35,000 a month until it sells? Or put no price on it at all, but just ask for offers? Or auction it off? If my local brokers have any ideas, they haven't told me.

K.L.

Answer: You've walked into an interesting pitfall in the real estate business, and one that gets very little attention — putting a silk purse in a sycamore neighborhood. And I'm sure that you're taking a small amount of comfort in that pitiful observation.

No, don't even entertain the idea of leaving it vacant. And while any negative cash flow you might experience from it during the time you are renting it might give you some welcome tax relief, it's not real cash.

I would try dropping the price, first, to comparables in the same area — let's say $30,000 (start high and come down gradually) — and see if that attracts any interest. If not, you might consider the option of either selling it or taking a big portion of the price back for the buyer, or try a lease-option on the house in an attempt to flush forth buyers that are motivated, otherwise qualified to make the necessary payments but who would not qualify through conventional financing.

You're in a box, there's no doubt about that, and the logical escape is through trimming your price or otherwise obliging a buyer. The only other option is a dog. Sow it out until the area appreciates enough to catch up with your overbuilt home. You could be old and gray before this happens.

Dear Mr. Campbell:

We are looking around as much for neighborhood as anything. I grew up here, but was gone 40 years. It appears to me that people ask too much for these houses. I am not so sure that believing that a 20-year-old house should sell for the same as what I consider an equivalent new house. Of course, some of the problem may be location — the new houses are usually pretty far out. However, there's no doubt about the work for the seller, where can a buyer get advice on such things as comparable houses and what is really a fair price or bargain?

S.P.

Answer: Unfortunately, there's no real answer to the old-house vs. new-house controversy. All life is a trade-off, alas. With an older house you may be getting more solid construction and more "elbow room" (a larger lot), but these pluses can be offset by the need for more modern conveniences and less likely to need major renovation. And then, as you say, there's the distance and the possible commuting involved. New houses, indeed, tend to be "pretty far out."

However, you're wrong about brokers always representing the seller. They do, of course, in all conventional transactions, but it is possible to line up one who will represent you, the buyer, exclusively, or of them advertise this service, but failing that, make a few calls around town asking if the agency has a buyer-representative service.

This can't lead you to a property that's conveniently listed, but it does allow you to inspect the seller's comp, but they can't sell directly by the owners, or that are in foreclosure, or that, for one reason or another, may be on the market, but not yet sold by anyone yet. Such brokers normally won't charge a fee, and if you think this is the way for you to go,

Being away for 40 years has put you a little out of touch. And that, after all, is the broker's role to be much. And that is the knowledge of what you're looking for, where you want to find it and how much you're willing to pay. He should be able to save you a mountain of time and an ocean of gas for your car.

NEW MEMBER: Mirella Ostrec, a freshman business administration major at Midway University, was recently initiated into the Pi Beta Phi sorority. A 1988 graduate of Marquette High School, Alton, she is the daughter of Branko and Kathryn Ostrec of Granite City.

Marshall holds free throw competition

At the Elks Free Throw Contest held at Marshall School in January, six students were named winners.

Each child has a chance to shoot 20 free throws. Those making the most baskets win. Norman Grote, physical education teacher, supervised the event.

Winners in the ages 8-9 division were Jennifer Garner and Mark Bradshaw. Winners aged 10-11 were Amy Waring and Natalie Down. Winners in the ages 12-13 division were Christine Vasques and Jeffery Taylor.

The six pupils were awarded medals provided by the Granite City Elks Lodge.

School artists in competition

Students from 30 high schools will compete for awards in the 11th annual high school art competition and exhibition at Belleville Area College.

A free public reception and awards presentation will be held at 7:30 p.m. March 9 in the Second Floor Gallery at the Belleville Campus, 2500 Carlyle Road.

An estimated 100 pieces of artwork will be on display March 8-9.

Three $100 awards, gift certificates and art supplies and books will be awarded to the top entrants in the competition.

"This gives the students an excellent opportunity to have their work judged and displayed," said Dale Threlkeld, a member of the BAC art department.

2 on Dean's List

One hundred students at MacMurray College, Jacksonville, Ill., have been named to the Dean's List for the first semester of the 1988-89 academic year.

Students must attain a 3.5 average or better and complete at least 14 hours of course work. A 4.0 equals a straight-A average. Of the total number of students on the Dean's List, 40 recorded a straight-A average.

On the list were John Kindle, a senior, the son of Juanita Kindle; and David Zukas, a freshman, both of Granite City.

To Dana Brown, it's a jungle out there

Today, March 2, is one of the most important dates of the year for me. I entered the Army that day in 1951 and left the Army the same date in 1953. But what I really want to talk about today is March 14.

Dana Brown, famed explorer, will speak here that evening, Tuesday, March 14, at the annual Salvation Army civic dinner. The same occasion at the Granite City Temple will also be highlighted by a two-hour Dixieland music concert by Singleton Palmer and his instrumental group.

He has graciously agreed to share some of his adventures and experiences with the local audience.

A widely sought-after speaker, he also has produced some of the finest and most exciting safari films in existence. Disregarding perils, he insists on a "front-row seat" for himself and his fans.

BIG GAME ANIMALS are his interest, and he has encountered them all, including such rare animals as:

The great forest hog, the sable antelope, the roan antelope, the greater kudu, the gemsback of Africa.

For more than 20 years, Dana

Brown has been hunting and photographing wild animals in the most remote areas of Africa and Asia. It's the best of both worlds for him — a hobby that is tax-deductible.

Regional Roundup

By Bill Winter

the Kalahara Desert, the addax and the white onyx of the Sahara Desert, and the Sahara's extremely rare domi gazelle.

Among the dangerous game pursued by Brown have been the lion, the leopard, the African cape buffalo, a few rogue elephants and the red forest buffalo of the Congo.

HIS MANY SAFARIS have included three journeys to Angola and several safaris in western Nepal where he has made so much approval when he did the king of a menacing tiger that he was welcomed back for seven consecutive yearly tours.

No other American has ever penetrated so many areas of Nepal where they are considered royal game, accessible only to the king and his guests.

Concerned in his activities lead him, hunter from almost every standpoint, Brown displays animal heads, elephant tusks, leopard skins and other trophies throughout his apartment in St. Louis.

MANY OF HIS FILMS have been used in coffee commercials as television viewers can attest.

He is the founder of Dana Brown Private Brands Inc., parent company of Safari coffee.

His latest film shows a sampling of his travels through wilderness areas, complete with a few close calls for the hunters, the coffee business has steadily expanded.

DANA BROWN has made literally dozens of trips, emphasizing the unexplored portions of the world, and many of his journeys have lasted two or three months each.

His support group on such trips sometimes exceeds 20 persons, including relatives of the particular country. He usually avoids tourist attractions, instead choosing totally undeveloped destinations.

Originally from West Virginia, he was once the most successful Fuller Brush home house salesman in the United States.

He then joined the Manhattan Coffee Co. in St. Louis and eventually became its owner, in 1958, launching the world-famous "Manhattan" coffee.

It was then that he formed his own private-brands coffee company.

His LONG CAREER has fascinated many, and it won't be surprising if a number of local residents attend to witness one of his rare public appearances.

I hope to be among them.

Audubon Society views slides

The Southwestern Illinois Audubon Society met Feb. 20 at the First Federal Savings and Loan, 200 S. St. Louis St., in Edwardsville.

Ed Anderson, a natural heritage biologist from the Department of Conservation in Alton, gave a slide show of the natural areas of Illinois saved by the department.

The slides included the beautiful Lush Canyon in Southern Illinois; Illinois Beach in Cook County; and the large and small prairies situated throughout the state. The slides included native prairie flowers, including the prairie rose. Also featured was timberland, including Bohm's Sanctuary near Edwardsburg.

Anderson explained that a portion of the income tax refund can be donated to the Nonpoint Wildlife Conservation Fund by checking line 11 on the Illinois tax return. A direct donation may be made by writing to the Nonpoint Wildlife Conservation Fund, 324 S. Second St., Springfield, Ill. 62701-1787.

The Southwestern Illinois Audubon Society members voted to donate $50 to the Nature Institute.

The Nature Institute started and maintains the Heritage Prairie Garden in Marion, Ill., in Alton, one of its many preservations and restoration activities.

The society's next meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. March 21 at the First Federal Savings and Loan.

Ed Wallace, vice president of the organization, will give a slide show on "Traveling Through Alaska." Some 188 of the Wallace and several members of his family formed a van caravan for the trip through Alaska.

held a song service.

Attending were John and Nell Hicks, Avery and Yvonne Morris, Jack and Lucy Colbert, and Henry and Tommie McNeely.

The Chouteau Township Senior Citizens met Feb. 23 at the Social Center, 906 N. Thorntage Drive. Following a hymn and offering, the group chose a pair of Valentine's Day sweethearts.

Chosen from a field of six nonagenarians, John DeCota and Sally Seger DeCota was presented with a bonbonniere, a chocolate heart. Seger received a corsage and a chocolate heart.

John and Paul Norris, former 25-year Mitchell residents now of Irondale, Mo., are announcing the birth of their first granddaughter, born to their daughter and son-in-law, Steven and Suzanne (Norris) Levy.

The baby was born at St. Elizabeth Medical Center on Feb. 15. She weighed 8 pounds, 10 ounces, and measured 21 inches long. Grandmother Suzanne has a brother, James Michael, 20 months old.

The paternal grandparents are Loyd and Ellen Levy and Margaret and Jack Rohrlich of Chicago.

The Norrises also have four other grandsons, Mathew, Michael, Nicholas and Nicholas Nicholas, children of their son and son-in-law, Karen and Patrick Bryarly of Granite City.

Pearl Turner is home after a 10-day stay in Queeny Towers in Barnes Hospital, St. Louis, where she underwent tests.

Members of the Faith Chapel General Baptist Church visited the Colonial Haven Nursing Home on Sunday, where they were hunting the coffee business has steadily expanded.

Exhibit at Science Center examines computer chip

By Pamela Selbert

The computer chip, whether we're aware of it or not, has invaded our lives. Even the most modern life, be it the home office, industry, or entertainment. This tiny chip, barely the size of a fingernail, has made fantastic changes in the world.

"Chips and Changes" is intended as a permanent exhibit at the St. Louis Science Center in Forest Park, focuses on the computer chip and its effects to explain it in a way that fascinates children and adults.

The exhibit illustrates all aspects of the computer chip; its development, its manufacture and its variety of uses. Said Dr. Jeff Bonner, director of research and special projects at the center. "In a sense it's a landmark exhibit. It's a computer that explores the humanities, history and the sciences in an interesting way, not focusing only on one discipline or the other."

"In today's world, we can't do much of anything without encountering the chip, so it's a very relevant display."

The exhibit, which was organized by the Association of Science-Technology Centers in Washington, D.C., combines interactive computer displays, robotics, historical objects, pictures, text, audiovisual presentations, and live demonstrations of mini-computer systems and services to illustrate what the chip is and how it came to be.

"The first computers, which used vacuum tubes, could easily fill an entire room," Bonner said. "Then the transistor, developed in the 1950s, replaced the tubes and caused computers to shrink substantially in size. And when the silicon computer chip came along, shrinking computers still more. The chip itself is a marvel, and this is what we hope to point out."

In this exhibit the visitor will learn how a chip is made to hold more than 1 million electronic components and 64,000 bits of information. The visitors can also provide a wide variety of jobs from providing entertainment through video games to diagnosing diseases through CAT scans. The visually impaired can "talk" through "talking" books. Displays illustrate these and many other devices that use computer chips.

The star attraction of the exhibits at the exhibit is the table-top robot, which is akin to the human arm and illustrates the use of robotics in industry.

Looking for children are the various toys that use the computer chip.

"These are the 'new wave' toys," Bonner said. "Among them we have here are the computers that have the sets of 18 musical instruments. Children or anyone, can select their instruments and sing, speak or move in the toy, and the computer converts the sound to the sound of the instrument."

Talking books can also be enjoyed.

It's like a book with a computer chip code," Bonner said. "Children move a pencil along it and the book 'talks' at the child's pace."

The historical section of the exhibit shows a series of innovations that came along before the computer chip, but those items also revolutionized life. Models are cameras from the 1800s, early radios, pocket watches that date from the 1920s, penicillin ampules and other "wonder" drugs from the 1940s, early transistor radios from the 1950s, and many more.

"The exhibit has a universal appeal," Bonner said. "It's a real eye-opener as to the implications of the computer chip in modern life."

Science Center hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday, 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Friday and Saturday, and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. For information, call (314) 239-4400.

'Gone with the Wind' returns to Tivoli

The new enhanced version of the 1939 MGM classic, "Gone With the Wind," is slated to return to St. Louis on March 3 through 9 at the Tivoli Theater.

Turner Entertainment Co. recently completed the restoring of the master print of "Gone With the Wind" to the luster of the feature's original excellence, while adding improvements to the quality of the sound track.

"Gone With the Wind" reopened Jan. 30 and 31 in New York at Radio City Music Hall and sold out immediately.

Jack Petrik, former general manager of KDNL-TV (Channel 30), St. Louis, is a manager of Turner Program Services and responsible for programming of the film on television and video.

What about Bob? causes role war

Robin Williams and Bill Murray are in mortal combat over the starring role in a film called "What About Bob?" that starts shooting April 10.

Slated for Christmas release, the project sounds made to order for Williams. The slip-covered misadventures of a neurotic man named Bob who panics when he finds out that his therapist is going on vacation. Unable to cope with his wife and his shrink on the family outing, something that proves positive for all concerned.

"What About Bob?" will be directed by Garry Marshall.

Massage videos bring relief to daily tension

You have been stuck on the couch all afternoon. You have dentist appointments scheduled over the next month and your refrigerator has stopped making ice.

What's a person to do to relax? Get a back rub, find someone to bury his or her fingers in your neck and relieve all that tension, stretch your aching limbs until they melt in a ... You get the idea.

Home-video companies have created more than a dozen tapes that teach novices how to perform a full body massage from the muscle-kneading of traditional Swedish massage all the way to the finger-poking of Shiatsu (Japanese acupressure).

A three-step leap out of the heap is the best of their kind:

For Swedish, "Massage for Health" with Shari Belafonte (1988, Healing Arts, $29.95, 65 mins., includes 40-page booklet and scented oil, 800-722-7347); for Oriental, "A Basic Course in Traditional Japanese Massage and Therapy" (1987, New Video, $39.95, 100 mins., no credits, 800-345-1441) and for hoochie-coo, "Playboy Art of Sensual Massage" (1985, Warner, $19.95, 45 mins., 800-345-1441).

"Massage for Health" has almost single-handedly put massage tapes on the map. Healing Arts has sold 23,000 copies of the critically praised effort, which features two veteran teachers demonstrating basic Swedish massage on a variety of attractive models. Well-produced and backed by New Age music, this tape feels very West Coast at times.

Originating from the other side of the planet, "Japanese Massage" (1987, on the Mantiqueira March 1, 1988, The Rocco Loretto-Hilton Center in Webster Groves). This is an enjoyable, highly visual, flawless production that the well-massaged yet inspiring, story of Jesus of Asia.

Many people, even those outside the Roman Catholic church, know of St. Joan's experiences. We know of her victorious battles, her strong faith in God and her eventual death at the stake.

In Western terms you're talking about congested flow of blood, lymph, toxins," says David Palmer, the instructor who delivers an superb lecture/demo using skeletons, graphics and male models. "At its most basic level it will make you feel better in 20 to 30 minutes. I guarantee it."

Two other solid tapes combine both Swedish and Oriental massage: "Massage Your Mate" (Leslie V. W., 1988, $29.95, 92 mins., 900-843-9842) and "How to Make Simple" (1987, Therapeutic Massage, 60 mins., $29.95), which includes some reflexology.

sual massages. The "Playboy" tape features a naked couple demonstrating massage techniques designed to heighten sexual awareness. It's erotic and surprisingly tasteful. Not sex, but floorplay. (It's the tape in my collection that friends take the longest to return and generally rave about.)

'St. Joan' memorable, nearly perfect

By Deborah Reinhardt

A remarkable play about a remarkable woman now can be seen at the Repertory Theater of St. Louis.

"Saint Joan" by George Bernard Shaw is on the Mantiqueira March 1, 1988, at The Rocco Loretto-Hilton Center in Webster Groves. This is an enjoyable, highly visual, flawless production that the well-massaged yet inspiring, story of Jesus of Asia.

Many people, even those outside the Roman Catholic church, know of St. Joan's experiences. We know of her victorious battles, her strong faith in God and her eventual death at the stake.

Throughout the play, Shaw presents the audience with interesting arguments about St. Joan. And the epilogue humorously puts the action into more contemporary time.

SINGLETON PALMER and his Dixieland Six will present a concert at the close of the 1989 Salvation Army civic dinner Tuesday evening, March 7, at the Granite City Township Hall, 2060 Delmar Ave. A tub virtuoso, Palmer has been a band leader 39 years. The dinner is open to the public, and reservations can be made by calling the Salvation Army at 451-7957 or Avery Schermer at 876-3659.

The incredible cast is the other reason to see The Rep's production. Playing the ensemble is Katherine Leacock. Joan is said that actresses covet this part as much as actors do to do "Hamlet." It obviously is a demanding role but Leacock, who makes her St. Louis debut with this work, gives a memorable, perfect performance.

Ben Halley Jr. is Joan's nemesis, the Earl of Warwick. He is a devious, conniving character, and is delightful as the sassy king-to-be and provides a good deal of comic breaks in several scenes.

Other highlights include: including John Reschounek as Diane, Joan's colleague in battle, and James Paul as the Archbishop of Rheims, add spark to the play.

William Goldsmith directs this fine production and adds some thought-provoking ideas to come through the action. Costumes designed by Dorothy Marshall are lavish.

For more information, call (314) 963-4925.

Her clerical tormentors, then, were not villains; they tried several times to save Joan. Strong performances by William Rhys as the Bishop of Beauvais, Ronald Weller as the Inquisitor, Joe Palmieri as the Chaplain de Stogumber, and Christopher Randolph as Brother Martin dramatically bring that point to life.

Many people, even those outside the Roman Catholic church, know of St. Joan's experiences. We know of her victorious battles, her strong faith in God and her eventual death at the stake.

Throughout the play, Shaw presents the audience with interesting arguments about St. Joan. And the epilogue humorously tells the revealing truth about the body.

In Western terms you're talking about congested flow of blood, lymph, toxins," says David Palmer, the instructor who delivers an superb lecture/demo using skeletons, graphics and male models. "At its most basic level it will make you feel better in 20 to 30 minutes. I guarantee it."

Two other solid tapes combine both Swedish and Oriental massage: "Massage Your Mate" (Leslie V. W., 1988, $29.95, 92 mins., 900-843-9842) and "How to Make Simple" (1987, Therapeutic Massage, 60 mins., $29.95), which includes some reflexology.

•Game

driving four consecutive three-pointers in a 2½-minute span to tie the score at 26-26.

The Warriors' spirit forced Lincoln out of its 2-1-2 zone defense and into a box-and-one scheme, which saw Cook get plenty of attention from the Bluejays' defense section. Despite the shadow, Cook connected for two more treys in the second half to keep the Warriors in the game.

"It just shows what's happening to this team when Matt's hitting his shots," Deterding said. "He hasn't been hitting them this year, but he came out tonight and had some of the difference in the world when the ball's going in the hole for you."

Cook, whose shooting had been slow throughout most of the season, said the Warriors took the court without the albatross of pressure hanging from their necks Tuesday.

"Like coach was saying, it just seemed like the harder I would try, the worse my shooting would get," he said. "And when you're losing, it's really tough to get up for your next game. But tonight we just took those wins and the attitude that there was nothing to lose."

That attitude allowed the Warriors to stay toe-to-toe with Lincoln through most of the third quarter. In fact, on consecutive trips down the court in the third period, center Shawn Tripp (eight points) gave the Warriors a pair of one-point leads by hitting short jumpers under the basket.

The Warriors' final demise was brought about by a 14-0 Lincoln scoring run which encompassed portions of the third and fourth quarters as the Tigers took a 52-39 lead.

Granite City managed to draw closer behind 11 late points by sophomore guard John Buskirk, and reserve guard Joe Wallace, but Martin sank a late bucket and free throw to put the game out of Granite City's reach.

"When we went up by a point in the third quarter, we all sort of realized that we could win the game," Cook said. "We all just seemed to do the things that we do well."

Deterding also praised the Warriors' defense, which threw a monkey wrench at Lincoln's offensive scheme most of the game.

"They (Lincoln) just had no idea how to stop our press," Deterding said. "We were our Monster defense, and I thought our inside guys (Kory Burton, Jeff Schaefer and Tripp) did a super job."

"You can do anything you want to in basketball, but if you're not making your shots, the rest doesn't really matter. Tonight we made our shots, and we can see what happened out there."

No, it wasn't a win. And, no, it won't make all the newspaper front pages, but it was a victory," Deterding said. The effort his team displayed in its final game will hang forever on his shelf of fond memories.

"To be honest, I don't really think I could've gone out any better than this," he said.

said Wescelin coach Paul Lusk Sr., a Madison native. "They took it to us. We needed a perfect game."

Assumption coach Ron Woods said his team is using the school's classroom as motivation. "They (Wescelin) were shooting the lights out in the first half," he said. "We were wondering if this was it. We had to come out and do it for the seniors and for our assistant coach, Leroy Millsaps."

Millsaps was fired last month and is an substitute at the high school with a student.

"He was a big help to me," said Woods. "He was at the high school every day and kept the gym open." (Woods teaches at Clark Junior High). We're winning for him."

The Pioneers chipped away at the Warriors' lead in the third quarter. Maurice Horton, Assumption's trimmer, scored to 47-46 and Dixon tied the game with a free throw. Senior Malcolm Hill, who matched Dixon's points, gave the Pioneers the lead for good with 1:15 left in the quarter.

Dixon scored before Hill stole the ball and got a layup in the final seconds as the Pioneers took a 66-53 lead into the fourth quarter.

"I can't do anything unless I get the ball," said Dixon. "So you have to credit our point guard (Horton) and Malcolm Hill. They both had great games."

Lusk was slowed a bit in the second half as he finished with 10 points. Wescelin's Brede had 24, but the rest of the Wescelin team only managed 13 points. Wescelin was still within striking distance, though, along the baseline for a layup and Hill took a length-of-the-court pass to make it 74-64 with 2:05 left.

The Pioneers made 10 of 15 free throws in the fourth quarter to hang on.

"We shoot 100 free throws a day in practice," Woods said.

"It paid off tonight. We didn't get many baskets of the transition, but we were efficient."

We fought fire with fire. We put our big kids underneath and played them that way. Dixon didn't want to do in the blocks because he knew his jump shot was on, but he did and showed good leadership."

"We didn't want to put our uniforms in mothballs," said Dixon. "We just had to go to the basket and take it to Lusk and Brede because we knew they didn't want to foul out."

Woods was happy to get the victory over a Wescelin team which had beaten the Pioneers 78-76 in overtime last month. Woods' team had to travel on to face tiny Patoka (population 84). He's well aware that everyone figured the winner of last year's Venice-Wescelin game was destined to win the sectional only to see Wescelin loose to St. Elmo in the title game.

and later Cuonzo Martin — one of the premier defensive players in the state — following Cook around. Matt still managed two more three-pointers in the second half.

Thoughts of the football Warriors' epic win over the East St. Louis Flyers were in everyone's mind after the basketball Warriors had pulled off a turnover that would have to be ranked far above that 17-14 gridiron miracle. Ron Yates' 1986 squad, after all, had to settle for a high-quality unit over the course of the year, winning the Southwest Conference and going to the playoffs.

By this year's basketball team had hardly distinguished itself, losing 16 of its last 18 games, to finish 7-19 and rarely coming all that close until Tuesday night. That was not hard to believe this game would be anything more than an extended Lincoln practice session as the Tigers began their run at a third straight title.

"I don't want this to sound like I'm putting down our kids' effort in any way," said Deterding. "But Lincoln just blew out." When Shadrack Jackson, one night after Alton had blown out (84-56), and they had to be looking ahead to playing East Side on Friday. You put that all together with the effort we had, and you have the makings of a close game."

Close it was, even though the Warriors couldn't have been blamed if they had let it in. It's been a long season, and when Lincoln shot out to a 10-lead, it could have been over. Neither did Garry King, who has covered the Warriors all year, had any reason to expect anything out of the ordinary.

Even at halftime, when the Tigers led 32-28, we thought it would be hard if the Warriors could lose by less than 20. Then Shawn Tripp twice put the Warriors ahead by a single point in the third quarter and you wished that everything the game could end then.

The Tigers scored 14 straight points to take a 53-39 lead and that seemed to be it again. Gary and I then thought it would be neat if the Warriors could keep the final margin within 10. But Cook, John VanBuskirk, Tripp, Kory Burton, Jeff Schaefer and Jon Wallace refused to give up. They actually made the mighty Tigers make pressure free-throws in the game's final minute. Rico Sylvester made two, but Cook, the first three-pointer made in 60 seconds, Martin made two before VanBuskirk's layup in the final seconds made the final margin a very satisfying 11.

The Warriors outscored the Tigers 45-43 over the final three quarters and held Chris McKinney (14.3 points per game) to five points. They even held all-star Martin (26.6 points per game) to his average. Deterding's average as the silky smooth 6-6 junior scored 23. Vincent Jackson (21.8) also scored below his average (16 points).

The Tigers had been averaging 82 points per game, but scored only 61. And the Warriors came much closer to beating Lincoln than teams like Venice (69-63), Calumet (67-54), East St. Louis (82-59), Alton (102-91), Collinsville (79-58) and Jacksonville (101-44). There were even several Flyer players on hand rooting for Granite City. Lincoln's only area win had been in the overtime at Belleville Althof. The Tigers had also lost close road games at Chicago Simeon and Chicago Marshall and had lost one game at the University (Ky.) Ballard in the 7UP/KMOX Shootout in December.

The Warriors' great effort was accomplished with Mike Williams as the lone problem, and their most consistent player this year before breaking his hand on Feb. 17. What would have happened with him in the lineup? "I don't know," said Deterding with a smile that seemed to tell exactly what he was thinking might have happened.

"I don't think anything to lose," said Cook. "And we played great. Shawn Tripp played a great game inside. And Johnny (VanBuskirk) was a steady influence all night. We just wanted to come down here and have fun."

They definitely had fun. They almost delayed Deterding's retirement. They almost made history.
